The Free-trader assured as that, what-ever ether estis might result from the Me-kinley Tariff, its high duty on the plate would surely kill the canning industry. The test of experience is now at hand. In 1855 there were 1,083,174

It is erroneous to speak of "the present Senate" or "the next Senate." The Sen-ate never expires. A Congress does, and so does a House of Representatives. The Senate and the House form a Congress. Grover Cleveland knew no peace dur-ing the closing years of his administra-tion because of the dangerous surplus in the Treasury. He assumes office with a similarly disturbed state of mind, be-cause the danger has been removed.

Princess Kalulani should have carefully culled her vocabulary before coming to the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave to plead for "royal rights." "My throne," "my people," "my kingdom," are terms not calculated to win favor in this country.

In figuring up the totals of the Demo-cratic Appropriation bills at should not be forgotten that many additional mil-itions must be added for the large defi-ciency obligations incurred un order to get at the full measure of the "economi-cal" prodigality of the Democratic House.

Only a few years ago this country was importing practically all the plate glass its people used, and that amounted only to 6,000,000 equare feet annually. Now our annual production is 15,000,000 square feet, and the price ias been an ordinced by domestic competition that foreign plate glass is almost driven out of the market.

Heilah foreign trade returns for January show a continued decrease. The loss on imports was £5,599,395 ft. In the imports of January. 1882, while exports fell off £1,129,085 When our foreign trade declines we continue to prosper because of the moupoply we enjoy of our infinitely more important domestic market. But foreign commerce is the life of British industry and a sure index of British prosperity.

In the days of wood and said the Yan-kee clipper ahip was the acknowledged queen of the seas. Even after the advent of steam our maritime supremacy was retained so long as the steamers of the collins line were alloat, the swiftest ships that traversed the Atlantic in their day. After a dreary interregamin, it is a matter of sincere congratulation that the starred flag is restored to trightful place on the queens of ocean racers.

Ar. Cleveland is said to be seriously thinking of requesting Minister Robert T. Lincoin to remain in London and Colonel Prederick D. Grant to continue at his post in Vienna. The suggestion is creditable to the President-elect, and many people believe that it would be mightly good politics, however distasteful it might be to the machine Democrats. If there is to be a return of "the era of good feeling," which was inaugurated by President Monroe, Mr. Cleveland could not make a better beginning than on the lines indicated. Minister Lincoin, who was appointed Secretary of War by President Garfield, was the only member of the latter's Cabbinet to serve through President Arthur's administration. He was, therefore, a colleague of Judge Gresbna. No doubt Mr. Cleveland's Secretary of State would take pleasure in communicating his chief's desire for Mr. Lincoin to stay at his post in London. But Mr. Lincoin a stay at his post in London. But Mr. Lincoin of say at his post in London. But Mr. Lincoin of not public life, and while 2 he has filled two high official stations with great credit to hisself, it is known that he prefers the independence and freedom of a private clitter. Colonel Grant, however, it is said, would not object to remainting in the diplomatic service.

WHEN Gresham left Arthur's Cabinet caid be wouldn't be a Cabinet officer again if $4,000,000 a year. Yet Mr. Cieveland did to have to invite him twice.

An Extra Neation Probable Washington, March A.—It is probable President Gleveland will call an extra newlon of congress. The present unantifactory and unfinished state of business makes such a course imperative. Three considerations of most vital importance demand, and there is the matter. First and paramount is the tariff question.
